RESEARCH INTERESTS

I focus on developing efficient and capable language models, particularly relatively smaller ones (up to 10 billion parameters). My research explores designing novel architectures and knowledge distillation techniques to improve both the quality and efficiency of these models. I also work on developing techniques to extend the context length of language models by over 30 times. More broadly, I am interested in novel self-supervised learning objectives, generalization phenomenon of deep neural networks, learning theory, in-context learning, and out-of-distribution generalization.
